to Be Affected

NEW YORK, March 2—(UP)—New York's building employees' strike, which already has affected most of the large apartment houses and hotels in the upper west side of Manhattan, spread today to the upper east side, which includes some of the most exclusive residential areas.

James J. Bambrick, president of the Building Service Employees' International Union, ordered out union elevator operators, firemen, chambermaids, and other hotel and apartment employees on the east side between 59th street and 110th street.

Bambrick said that 1,000 buildings, in such swank neighborhoods as Park avenue, Fifth avenue and Sutton Place, were hit by the latest strike call.

He estimated that yesterday's orders calling out union workers on the upper west side between 59th and 125th streets paralyzed at least 1,400 buildings in Manhattan.

The Park avenue apartment house in which Gov. Herbert H. Lehman lives also felt the walkout which Bambrick promised would paralyze 9,600 office buildings, hotels and apartment houses throughout Manhattan and the Bronx by tonight.

The strikers demands include a closed shop and wage increases averaging $2 a week. Real estate owners rejected these demands as "unreasonable" because the closed shop "necessarily conflicts with discipline and good service and also with American principles whereby every man is entitled to earn a living regardless of race, creed or union affiliation."

Bambrick predicted that a total 147,000 workmen would be out when

Landon and Borah Lead for G. O. P. Nomination

First Delegates to National Convention to Be Chosen in New Hampshire, Native State of Frank Knox, on March 14; Recent Polls Favor Kansas Governor

WASHINGTON, March 2—(UP)—Two western Republicans are standouts among Republican presidential candidates as the party enters the vital 90-day pre-convention period during which nominating convention delegates will be chosen.

Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas and Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho are running in front of the pack of avowed and dark horse candidates for Republican favor.

Polls and other tests of popular sentiment have been remarkable for repeated showing of preference for that pair.

Friendly to Knox

Party nominating machinery will be moving March 10 when the first of 14 presidential primaries takes place in New Hampshire, birthplace of a third candidate, Frank Knox of Chicago. New Hampshire is scheduled to send to the Republican national convention an uninstructed delegation but one friendly to the Chicago publisher.

The Republicans convene in Cleveland, O., June 9.

This week's decision of Landon, Knox, Sen. Arthur M. Vandenberg, R., Mich., and Sen. L. J. Dickinson, R., Ia., to avoid the Ohio primary leaves Borah in the race there against Robert A. Taft, son of the late president and "favorite son" choice of the state Republican organization.

Taft's selection by Ohio Republicans means merely that any delegates sent to Cleveland in his name would boost safely on the Taft banner until the leaders decided where the presidential parade was going. The state of Taft delegates in Ohio will be about evenly divided between persons favorable to Knox and Landon.

Borah's down-front position in the Republican presidential picture has been won by an increasingly vigorous campaign for recognition.

Lead in First Poll

The senator was put in first place among a dozen potential nominees last August in a poll of Republican local leaders conducted by Robert H. Lucas, former executive director of the Republican National committee. Knox was second and Landon third. A nationally syndicated poll published Dec. 1, 1935, put Landon in first position ahead of Borah, former President Hoover, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., and Knox, in that order. That poll was repeated on Feb. 23 of this year with no major change in the standings except that Landon's hold on popular increased from 33 to 43 percent.

EFFORT TO PUT GAMING DEVICES BACK REPORTED

Pressure Being Applied By Machine Owners and Some Business Men

LONG TABLE OPERATING

Similar Reports in Chillicothe Bring Action of Civic Organizations

Pressure was reported being applied from several sources Monday to bring about restoration of pinball and other gaming devices within the city.

Some of the activity, it is reported, is from the owners of machines who have been hit financially in the pocketbook by the order of Mayor W. J. Grohman, safety director, Charles Chalmers.

Much dissatisfaction is being expressed by some commercial restaurant and drugstore operators, who have had business ruined, because the machines in H. E. Betz restaurant has not been taken out. So far the safety department has taken no steps to force removal of the Betz machines.

A showdown is expected Saturday very long with all machines to be removed, or all to be permitted to return.

In Chillicothe, a movement to bring about return of gaming devices has been active among numerous clubs including Rotary, Elks and the League of Women Voters.

Leaders of all the organizations have decided to take all steps necessary to prevent their legislation in the Ross-co city where Mayor James Ford's activity resulted in their removal.

Solicitor Kenneth Stevens disclosed to newspapers that he has heard an effort would be made in council to have legislation drawn up to make the devices legal. "I draft a bill if council ordered," he explained, "but I also would let them know that the legislation is illegal."

Representatives of civic groups will probably attend the next council meeting.

When Mayor Ford was informed of the rumors the machines were coming back, he replied: "I'm crossing no bridges until I come to them."

MANHATTAN, Kans., March 2—(UP)—Christine Wiggins, Kansas State college extension specialist, today proposed bright colors for children's clothes as a traffic safety measure.

Dress them vividly so motorists can see them from a distance, is Miss Wiggins' idea.

"A bright-colored coat is far better than drab brown, dark blue or gray," she said, "because the dark colors blend with the roadside hues and the small wearer is unnoticed."

"Children," she said, "should be seen and not hurt."

SEVEN LUTHERAN CHOIR MEMBERS THIEF'S VICTIMS

Purses Looted of $13 While Church is Being Conducted Sunday Morning

While seven members of the Trinity Lutheran church choir were taking part in the service Sunday morning, a thief rifled their purses in an anteroom and obtained about $13.

Those who reported losses were: Mrs. Dudley Carpenter, E. Mound-st., $2.50; Mrs. James Carpenter, E. Mound-st., $1.50; Mrs. George Troutman, E. Mound-st., $1; Miss Mary Seall, E. Franklin-st., $2 and some change; Miss Dorothy Bartley, E. High-st., $4; Miss Helen Crist, N. Court-st., $1, and Miss Martha Reid, E. Union-st., $1.

Choir members left their wraps and purses in the assembly room while they took part in the services. The purses were rifled and returned to their exact places by the thief. Victims did not miss the money until after the services were over.

Acting Chief Alva Shasteen and Deputy Sheriff Bob Armstrong investigated the theft.

CITY EMPLOYEES TO RECEIVE PAY

Treasurer Informs Officials $2,000 is Ready

Monday was pay day for city employees.

Robert G. Colville, county treasurer, notified city officials Monday morning a draft of $2,000 to settle salaries for February, would be available on the belated December tax collection.

Employees hoped to have their pay checks Monday afternoon. They have received no pay since Feb. 1 because of the condition of the city's finances.

ROBINSON'S HENHOUSE RAIDED SECOND TIME

Eight mixed hens were stolen from the chicken house of Asa Robinson, 121 Huston-st., Saturday night.

A lock was broken from the chicken house door by the thief. Mr. Robinson told officers it was the second time his chicken house had been entered in the last week. Previously about 10 or 12 chickens were stolen.

During the last month a number of local henhouses have been raided.

LOS ANGELES FEELS TWO MINOR QUAKES

LOS ANGELES, March 2—(UP)—Two earthquakes of minor intensity jarred southern California yesterday, rattling windows and tilting pictures on walls but doing little other damage.

The shocks were recorded at 11:28 a. m. and 11:43 a. m. (PST). The tremors were felt only in a dozen southern California cities surrounding Los Angeles.

EFFORT TO PUT GAMING DEVICES BACK REPORTED

Pressure Being Applied By Machine Owners and Some Business Men

LONG TABLE OPERATING

Similar Reports in Chillicothe Bring Action of Civic Organizations

Pressure was reported being applied from several sources Monday to bring about restoration of pinball and other gaming devices within the city.

Some of the activity, it is reported, is from the owners of the machines who have been hit terrifically in the pocketbook by the order of Mayor W. J. Graham's safety director, Charles Caskey.

Much dissatisfaction is being expressed by some confectionary, restaurant and drugstore operators, who have had devices removed, because the machine in the H. E. Betz restaurant has not been taken out. So far the safety department has taken no steps to force removal of the Betz machine.

A showdown is expected before very long with all machines to be removed, or all to be permitted to return.

In Chillicothe, a reported effort to bring about a return of the ousted devices has resulted in activity among numerous service clubs including Rotary, Kiwanis and the League of Women Voters. Leaders of all the organizations have decided to take all steps necessary to prevent their legalization in the Ross-co city where Mayor James Ford's activity resulted in their removal.

Solicitor Kenneth Stevens disclosed to newspapers that he has heard an effort would be made in council to have legislation drawn up to make the devices legal. "I'd draft a bill if council ordered," he explained, "but I also would let them know that the legislation is illegal."

Representatives of civic groups will probably attend the next council meeting.

When Mayor Ford was informed of the rumors the machines were coming back, he replied: "I'm crossing no bridges until I come to them."

FEDERAL JUDGE FACES CHARGES BEFORE SOLONS

Halsted L. Ritter, Florida, Indicted for High Crime, Misdemeanor

WASHINGTON, March 2—(UP)—Impeachment of Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of the southern district of Florida on charges of high crimes and misdemeanors in office will be asked of the house today.

Rep. Hutton W. Summers, D., Tex., chairman of the judiciary committee which filed the charges 10 days ago, said he would speak in favor of the committee's recommendation for Ritter's impeachment. He had permission to bring up the report today.

Ritter is alleged to have set excessive receivership fees from which he personally benefitted and which, the committee contended, brought his court into "scandal and disrepute."

Summers Regarded High

Summers, quiet-spoken and mild-mannered, is regarded as one of the best constitutional lawyers in congress. He will read the indictment upon which the house will act.

If the house rejects the committee's recommendations the case will be dropped. If it votes impeachment Ritter will be tried by the senate. The house would appoint "managers" to prosecute with the senate sitting as a jury.

Since 1790, the senate has sat as a court of impeachment only 11 times. The last time was in 1933, when it acquitted Federal Judge Harold Louderback, of the northern district of California.

Seven of the defendants were acquitted; three were removed from office and another resigned his judgeship, while proceedings were in progress, and the case was dismissed.

The most famous of all impeachment proceedings was that of President Andrew Jackson, who was acquitted in 1868.

The charges against Ritter embrace primarily his relationships with A. L. Rankin, his former law partner, in receivership cases being heard before him.

Allowed Advance Fee

The report alleged that Ritter allowed Rankin May 15, 1930 an "advance" fee of $2,500. Ritter, the report said, then asked another federal judge, Alexander Akerman, to set Rankin's total fee for the case as it would be "embarrassing" for Ritter in view of his former connections.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

There's at least one man in the cast of "Metropolitan," the 20th Century-Fox picture at the Grand theatre, who is playing a true-life role.

He is Stewart Willie, who appears in the picture as the accompanist for Lawrence Tibbett, the singing star of "Metropolitan."

When the picture was being cast, Tibbett himself suggested Willie for the role. He has actually accompanied the famous baritone artist for years in his concert tours.

The picture, personally produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, is a romantic comedy with an operatic background. Virginia Bruce, Alice Brady and Cesar Romero appear in the featured cast.

AT THE CLIFTONA

When pretty Jean Parker left Hollywood for England to play opposite Robert Donat in "The Ghost Goes West," Alexander Korda's gay, romantic comedy at the Cliftona theatre, she looked forward to a few weeks' vacation in which to see London, followed by a working day of perhaps four hours, with several intermissions for tea.

But she had barely set foot on British soil when her ideas of British film studios were knocked into a cocked hat. She was installed in her hotel at three o'clock. At four a shooting script of "The Ghost Goes West" arrived with a note from the producer, asking her to be at the studio at eight next morning for rehearsals, and adding that it would help if she could learn the first two scenes that night. The film is released through United Artists.

On Tuesday and Wednesday the Cliftona theatre presents Central Ohio's radio favorite, Montana Muehly with his famous cowboy band. You hear them daily on WATU.

The special election in Fairfield, Hocking, Perry, Pickaway and Ross counties will be held in connection with the regular state primary and election, May 12 and Nov. 3.

IRE SOLONS TO HEAR GOVERNOR

Hoffman to Discuss Finances Before Legislators

TRENTON, N. J., March 2—(UP)—Where four years ago today policemen, federal agents and private detectives swarmed to investigate the kidnaping 12 hours previously of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., Gov. Harold C. Hoffman fought against political extinction today for pursuing the inquiry.

The young governor will go before the legislature tonight to discuss problems of relief financing. Before he leaves the capitol the Lindbergh case is expected to explode in his face.

Colleagues Angered

Hoffman has angered members of his own Republican party as well as Democrats by repudiating Bruno Richard Hauptmann, by accusing state witnesses at Hauptmann's trial of lying, and by asserting a conviction, equally frankly, that the Democratic Chief of State Police Norman H. Schwarzkopf and the Democratic Attorney General David T. Wilentz "framed" a case against Hauptmann.

Legislators attacked him last Monday night while 2,000 demonstrators for relief legislation paraded and shouted outside the capitol doors.

"If he paid less attention to a murderer and more to state business, the relief problem could be solved in a week," an assemblyman said.

30 Days Remain

Hoffman will go before the legislature with 30 days left in which to prove his contention that Hauptmann at least had accomplices in the kidnaping. Hauptmann is sentenced to die in the week of March 30. His lawyers have exhausted all the resources of the courts.

Oddities in Nation's News

WIDOWS ARE VICTIMS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., March 2—(UP)—Samuel Miller has married so many widows that he's forgotten half of them, maybe more. No one knows how many half of them would be. His career came to light on complaint of Miss Beatrice Bass, who said he drugged her on their wedding night and quit the honeymoon with $10,000 worth of her jewels. Police said he had done the same thing in New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, locating wealthy widows by matrimonial ads in Yiddish language newspapers. He's held without bail for larceny.

UPPER PLATE STOLEN

DENVER, March 2—(UP)—Loss of his watch and cash was bad enough but when holdup men swiped his upper plate—the one with the gold inlay to make it look natural—it was too much, David Amburn told police. The five men who ganged him rendered resistance impossible, however. The plate flew out in the scuffle, he said, and was grabbed up for the gold it contained.

THIEVES AND THIEVES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 2—(UP)—Auto thieves tie red ribbons on the wheel of their stolen cars here so that fellow thieves will make no mistake and swipe the wrong car, police have determined.

MORE MUD—NO SHINES

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2—(UP)—No more mud is going to be thrown at the statue of Robert Louis Stevenson in Portsmouth Square and so the Chinese bootblacks again are free to polish shoes in that vicinity. The small Chinese pledged police they would chuck their mud balls elsewhere and thus the ban against shoe shining activities was lifted.

TARGET, THEN WOMAN

McHENRY, Ill., March 2—(UP)—Eugene Nielsen, 15, hit his rifle target—and was arrested. He painted the target on the wall of his father's bakery. The first shot struck the target, pierced the wall, whizzed through Mrs. Catherine Barbians' apparel store. The second shot struck the fleeing Mrs. Barbians. Mrs. Barbians was taken to a hospital. Nielsen to jail.

VOICE ...of the... PEOPLE

The Circulator
The Circleville Herald
Circleville, Ohio.

Dear Circulator:

I wish to congratulate you on your editorial addressed to "Board of Education." You are the first person to call the attention of the public to the fact that our city teachers are woefully underpaid.

This is no more an attack upon the board than was your editorial, but I venture to say that most citizens don't realize that girls working in a popular local soda grill are paid more (on a twelve month basis) than are our teachers. If you divide seven hundred and fifty dollars a year by twelve months you have a monthly wage of sixty-two dollars. Fly your pencil a little more. Divide this monthly wage by four weeks; a weekly wage of fifteen dollars and sixty cents. This is the actual salary of the daughter of one of my neighbors—a teacher in Circleville.

I think our teachers have been patient and hard-working. They have the best interests of the children at heart and they don't grumble. But it's a bad sign when they are afraid to tell what they are paid or to protest against sweat-shop wages. Any business man knows that, in time, cheap wages result in inefficiency. What business man would consider it a good investment to spend two thousand dollars, for a normal school training of two years, to prepare his daughter to earn sixteen dollars and sixty cents a week? Couldn't she do as well in any dry goods store without any training?

The Traxler-Keifer foundation school program provides a free gift to the schools with this one provision: seventy-five per cent of the sum must be spent for instruction. Why hasn't our board applied for the money? If we don't get it somebody else will. The county schools accept it gladly. Is it fair for our board to sustain its pride at the expense of its employees? Don't the business men realize how much benefit accrues to them if teacher's salaries are raised?

Perhaps the board doesn't know that the public would be glad to operate its schools under the foundation program. Does the public want it? If so, let the board know that you do. Now is the time for every interested parent and taxpayer to come to the aid of his schools.

Very truly yours,
INTERESTED CITIZEN

Tells of Arms Craft

IN testimony before the British royal commission, conducting an investigation in London of the private arms industry, Captain John Ball, director of the Solen Armaments Company, Ltd., admitted that "palm greasing" was frequent in consummating sales of arms that "people aren't going to do anything for nothing". In a letter read at the Washington arms inquiry, Captain Ball stated that his firm could sell enough surplus rifles from the stocks of the British war office "to alter the political balance of power of smaller states".

LANDIS'S WARNING

STOCK MARKET speculation is again on the wing. Whether it could soar swiftly and high as it did in 1929, clipped as it has been, is beside the question, as is the fact that it is being done largely without new borrowings. It is enough that there are pronounced symptoms of the old recklessness, with the inclination to depend more on the ticker tape than, as prescribed by James M. Landis, "to buy and sell on the basis of the balance sheet."

The address of the Securities and Exchange Commission's chairman before the Princeton National Alumni Association was highly apposite to the disturbing situation created by this disregard of intrinsic values. His viewing with concern "the efforts of traders to outguess events, like court decisions," was significantly directed at what happened just before and after the recent TVA decision. It would be interesting to know just how much of that flurry in buying and selling of public utility stocks was for own account as against customer account, as bearing on proposed regulatory distinctions between broker and dealer.

What Mr. Landis had to say, incidentally, of the responsibilities and limitations laid upon the commission spoke volumes for his broad concept of the functions entrusted to that body. Outlining the methods adopted to prevent unfair practices in stock dealings and excessive speculation, he admitted that some things could not be hurried out of existence by legislative fiat. To that he added:

"Our only mechanism is to induce change by inculcating the wish for change and by affording the means of knowledge to effectuate that change."

In other words, it is not possible for, and should not be attempted by, the government to safeguard the individual from the consequences of his own foolishness, heedlessness or avarice. He has got to use a modicum of common sense whether trading in securities or what not. If he doesn't, he is in for a trimming, more certainly, perhaps, on a stock exchange than elsewhere.

But even after the Italians have won Ethiopia, what will they have?

The backbone of winter, made of sturdy stuff this year, is showing signs of weakening.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

What's a threat to one person, may be a promise to another.

Senator L. J. Dickinson unmistakably intended to threaten when he recently reminded the country that the re-election of a New Deal president is more than likely to mean the creation of a New Deal supreme court before the coming presidential term is ended.

But to New Dealers, this is all the more reason for re-electing the present New Deal president. However, whether interpreted as a warning or a pledge, the Iowa solon (himself something of a Republican, anti-New Deal presidential aspirant) undoubtedly spoke words of considerable sooth when he said what he did on the subject.

YOUNGEST IN 60's

If President Roosevelt is re-elected, before his second term ends Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds and Sutherland will be 70. Justice Butler will be 75. Justice Van Devanter will be 82. Justice Brandeis will be 85.

If they live, of course.

Up it among the probabilities that all, if any, of these old men will outlast another presidential term.

Justice Cardozo, at 66 now, is at 64 and Roberts at 61, comparatively youthful, but Justice Stone also is liberally assessed. Personally I think he is only qualifiedly so. Still, he's no hidebound reactionary.

Roberts is slightly liberal.

Justice Brandeis is slightly liberal.

Justice Brandeis is slightly liberal.

DISMISSED ROPER AIDES TRIED TO CLEAN UP STEAMBOAT INSPECTION

WASHINGTON—Behind Secretary Roper's dismissal of two experts on steamship inspection last week is a long and secret story of intrigue which goes to the roots of the Morro Castle and other tragedies of the sea.

Commander H. McCoy Jones and Frederick L. Adams, both of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, had fought a hard-fisted, sometimes ruthless battle against the big shipping companies to prevent further tragedies. And they were supported by J. B. Weaver, head of the Bureau.

Both young, both ex-naval officers, both with independent means, they had joined Roper's Commerce Department for the sole purpose of preventing sea tragedies, did not care whether they retained their jobs or not. Politics was the last thing they worried about.

Shortly after they joined Mr. Roper's organization, however, they found that politics mattered a great deal. Also they began to uncover what every sea tragedy has pointed to, inexcusable inefficiency and graft in the steamboat inspection service.

LIFE BOAT INSPECTION

The navigation laws, for instance, require that every life-boat shall be inspected before a vessel departs. A proper inspection requires that it shall be swung out on its davits and lowered in the water to test leaks.

But almost never is a full inspection made. Bureau inspectors are content to swing out one boat and let the rest go. Other inspection is on the same level.

Probing into this, Jones and Adams suspected that gratuities were being given to some of their inspectors. It was difficult to prove this, but they found inspectors living beyond their income, also receiving various intangible benefits from steamship owners.

STEAMSHIP OWNERS' LOBBY

Even more important, they found that when honest inspectors did insist on a thorough fulfillment of their duties, the steamship owners—who maintain one of the most efficient lobbies in Washington—immediately went over their heads to the higher-ups in the Commerce Department.

The Young Bloods in the Navigation Bureau immediately started a reform. One of these reforms was to pay inspectors more money, eliminate graft temptation.

FLOATING FIRETRAPS

Another condition, pregnant with tragedy, that the Young Bloods unearthed was the state of American coastwise and inner waterway vessels.

Many of these, including the ships used on some of the most popular excursions to New England and the South, were characterized by McCoy and Adams as "floating firetraps" which would sink "if one hole was poked in them."

They also reported that "many of the ferries throughout the country are old vessels and of an inflammable construction."

Charles P. Stewart

they're only three out of nine, and maybe not even their trio will survive unbroken until the spring of 1941.

This isn't to make direful predictions, but only to recognize reasonable probabilities.

THE ALIGNMENT

Assume that Justice Brandeis doesn't die but, maybe, retires. He's the court's outstanding liberal. Presumably, by the appointment of a New Deal president, another, equally liberal, will succeed him.

Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Butler and Van Devanter notoriously are Tories. All logic would suggest that their seats, if left vacant, would be recouped by liberals, if chosen by a New Deal president and confirmed by a New Deal senate.

Chief Justice Hughes is but a very mild mild progressive; his seat on the bench could be greatly liberalized by a New Deal appointment.

PARTLY LIBERAL

Justice Cardozo is almost if not quite as liberal as Justice Brandeis.

Justice Stone also is liberally assessed. Personally I think he is only qualifiedly so. Still, he's no hidebound reactionary.

Roberts is slightly liberal.

Justice Brandeis is slightly liberal.

Justice Brandeis is slightly liberal.

Justice Brandeis is slightly liberal.

With All My Heart
 BY SARA CHRISTY
 CHAPTER 26
 THE DAY'S next incident was marked by a hearty attack on the front door knocker, a half hour later Thora, who was in the drawing room at the moment, stepped across the hall to answer it, sending a nod and smile to Jane who came hurrying from the dining room.
 "The caller proved to be none other than Sherman Gordon.
 "Well, we meet again," was his smiling greeting. "Please note, Miss Thora Dahl, that I'm making a proper entrance this time."
 "Will you come in?"
 "I had something of the sort in mind," he admitted. "And now you can't keep me out. Is Wilma at home?"
 "Yes, she is. Mr. Gordon. But I believe that she is lying down just now. . . . a headache."
 Thora supplied that sympathetic subject almost without thinking. She realized that Wilma's face still bore the marks of protracted tears; she would not wish to see anyone. Thora also found herself speculating about Mr. Babbas. Did he know about Mr. Babbas? It was not likely. Sherman stood looking down at her, his hands thrust in his pockets, the familiar smile quivering the corners of his mouth.
 "Something tells me the battle has been fought," he drawled. "Do you happen to know what the casualties were? Or who won?"
 "I'm afraid that I don't understand."
 "No? Well, it's all in the family. Little Wilma succumbed to the charms of some gallant across the pond and has been afraid to break the news to old Selwyn. She sobbed out the sad story of my shoulder the other afternoon. Had the nerve to suggest that I act as ambassador to this Ali Babba, or whatever his name is. I told her there was nothing doing. . . . not with her dad in the throes of patriot ancestors. She was planning to break the news to him today, so I brought her strolly and checked up on the news."
 Thora wondered involuntarily if Mr. Gordon were as indifferent to Wilma's engagement as he seemed. Perhaps he was assuming this pose to hide his real feelings.
 "Mr. Babbas is expected here. . . . as a guest," was her official comment.
 "Yes? Well, in that case, I've got quite a job ahead of me, I fancy. For Wilma's sake, I don't mind taking this Ali Babba under my wing, but . . . The first shade of gravity touched Sherman Gordon's tones. But, if he turns out to be one of the Porty Thieves. . . . God help him!"
 Life seemed to have entered into a new phase, Thora Dahl thought, as she went about her duties the next day. The change had come about so suddenly. Merely a few hours ago, the future had seemed like a blank wall. Now, she felt established once more. There was a little glow of satisfaction when she recalled what had happened.
 Mr. Marsh really wanted her to stay at Fair Acres. She was glad now that she had told him so. Perhaps she had been unduly sensitive. . . . after all, it had nothing to be ashamed of. It was only her father's stubborn ideas of righteousness that had sent her adrift, prevented her from taking up the old life that belonged to her. But she felt that now she had emerged from under a cloud of some sort and could look the world squarely in the face. And Wilma Marsh no longer was her little sister, room the evening before of her own accord. There had been nothing effusive about Wilma, but she had been frank and unreserved. Mr. Babbas would arrive the next day but one, reaching Fair Acres in time for dinner. There were various suggestions to make. But Wilma showed no inclination to be dictatorial; it merely was a household conference.
 While Thora was thinking these things over, as she went about her duties, a ringing of the telephone sent her into the front hall to answer the summons. She recognized the voice at once.
 "Please ask Miss Marsh to come to the telephone," the crisp tones ordered.
 "Just a moment, Mrs. Steele," Thora replied. "Miss Marsh is upstairs. I will call her to the extension."
 A moment later, she heard Wilma's voice coming in on the line and she replaced the receiver.
 "If father asks for me," she volunteered, "will you please tell him that I have come over to Aunt Dorothy's for a little while. I'm going to ask Ted to drive me."
 "Thora nodded, wondering to herself why Wilma elected to make the short trip by car. She herself would have preferred to walk across the fields on one of her beautiful days. From the open door she watched Wilma enter the parlor, with a good-natured greeting to the boy.
 "How have you been making out, Ted?" Wilma inquired, as the machine started down the driveway.
 "Oh, fine," she said.
 "Yes, look it!" The girl's dark eyes lighted with amusement. "How do you like our good-looking house-keeper?"
 "She's a peach!" Ted realized that he had allowed his enthusiasm to get the better of him. He blushed under his freckles.
 "Well!" Wilma exclaimed bantering. "So that's it. I heard that you were smitten there. Nellie told me. The poor girl is crushed. You shouldn't be so cruel, Ted, really."
 "Aw, . . . sherry down," young Mr. Gardner muttered, the flush in his cheeks deepening. "You don't want to pay any attention to her, Miss Wilma."
 "I don't know. . . . my mistress said doubtfully. "You have a way with women. Well, I'm not sure I blame you." To Ted's great relief, she changed the subject. "I shan't be in Mrs. Steele's very long. I want you to wait."
 "Yes, ma'am. I'll wait."
 As the car slowed to a stop before the door of the small white house, its owner came hurrying down the steps. "Wilma, darling! It was good of you to come over so quickly." She held up her cheek for her visitor to kiss.
 Wilma walked directly out to a small sun parlor at the end of the hall and dropped into one of the chintz-covered chairs. She swept her hat from her head with a careless motion, took a cigaret from her bag and lighted it.
 "Well?" she inquired. "What is all the excitement about?"
 "Why, I wanted to have a little talk with you, darling. . . . alone." Mrs. Steele began, drawing a small chair close to her caller's.
 "Okay," Wilma blew a thread of smoke into the air and watched it through her half-closed eyes. "I have something to tell you, too. But you start in."

Stuttering Involuntary Break in Speech

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
 "STUTTERING, with which we are all so familiar, may be described as an involuntary break in the rhythm of speech."

Dr. Clendening

Such is the definition given in a new book by Smiley Blanton and Margaret Gray Blanton, called "For Stutterers." The subject is of universal interest and for good reason. Out of 1,142 freshmen at the University of Wisconsin in 1919, 79 stuttered. That is quite a good proportion of the population. They are found in all fields and walks of life, so that it is very difficult to speak of them as a whole. One thing, however, distinguishes them—they do not think of themselves so much as members of a race, nation, religion or profession, but as stutterers. Only the totally deaf and the totally blind recognize this same group membership.

Interruptions in the rhythm of speech occur in different periods of life. It often is thought that stuttering is nearly always outgrown. Stutterers are frequently reassured by someone who bases his comfortable thought on the statement, "I, myself, stuttered once." At the age of 6 a good many more people stutter than if you took the same group at the age of 10. The person whose stuttering gets worse at 10, usually continues with it through adolescence, at which time it either disappears or becomes worse and persists through adult life.

What Causes Stuttering?

The explanation of the cause of stuttering falls into two general divisions. One is that it is more or less physical. The theory ranges from the very simple idea that it can be overcome by training, to the rather complicated theory developed by Travis that it is due to a disturbance of the nervous pattern of left-handedness and right-handedness. In other words, that stutterers are mostly left-handed people who have learned to become right-handed. The other theory that the Blantons emphasize, is that it is largely emotional. In the development of the nerve centers, the lower nerve centers gradually surrender their independent activity and bring themselves under the control of the higher nerve centers of the brain. In the stutterer some emotional strain or continued anxiety interferes with this orderly development. The cruder movements which cause such noises as grunting and sneaking, break through the movements of speech which are controlled by the higher centers, and result in the interrupted rhythm of speech.

VERY BOLD BIDDING

TODAY'S HAND was the occasion of very bold bidding, combined with shrewd strategy and such an air of jaunty assurance by declarer that it seemed most disconcerting to the defenders.

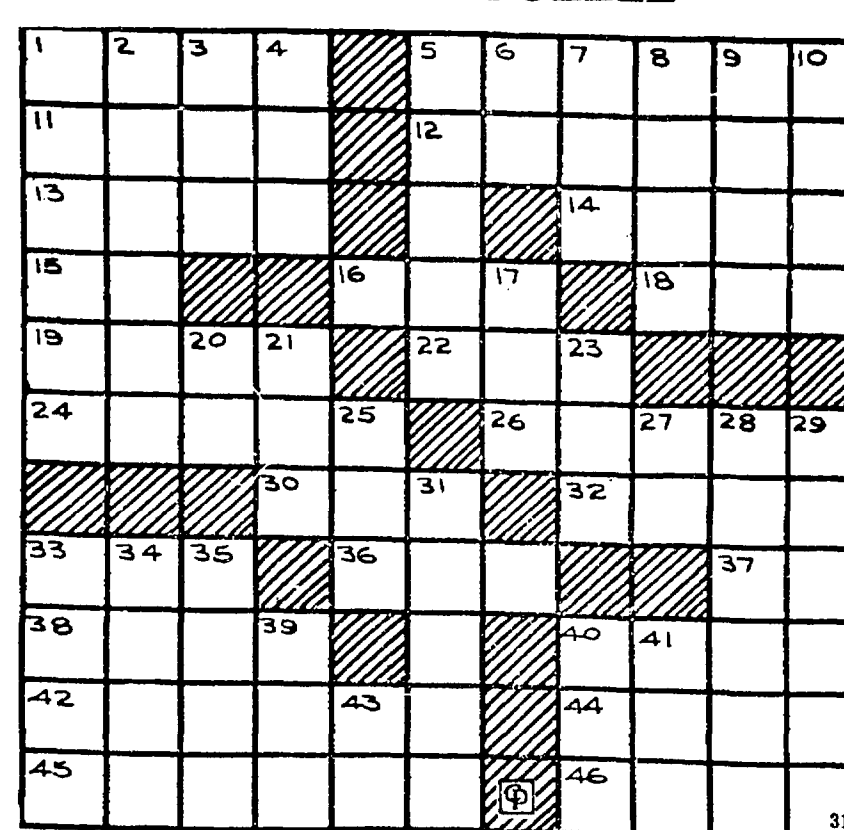

West led his 10 of clubs, hoping to annoy declarer by leaving him in the dummy, but South led a low heart from dummy, won with his KC, then led a diamond through West, picking up the lone Q, and leaving all of dummy's diamonds good. Declarer followed suit on the first diamond led from dummy. He discarded his two low hearts on the two last diamonds led from dummy. That brought play through the eleventh trick. The two remaining tricks went to declarer's Ace of hearts and his long trump, giving him 6-odd, on holdings looking only fair.

Bidding went: South, 1-Spade; North, 1-No Trump, to show lack of quick trick strength; South, 2-Hearts; North, 3-Diamonds, to show his long suit; South, 3-Hearts; North, 4-Spades, which seemed an amazing call.

The opening lead was the 4 of clubs, sweeping away the J and K of the suit, and the trick going to declarer's Ace. The two evident methods of play were for dummy to ruff two losing hearts, or for declarer to establish dummy's diamonds, to enable two hearts to be discarded thereon later on, provided all went well. To be ready for either plan, declarer led a diamond. When West's Ace won, he as good as told everyone that he also held the missing Q. That settled South's plans for the play.

To hamper declarer's ability to ruff off losing hearts, the return lead was the 10 of spades. Dummy's J of His viewing with concern "the efforts of traders to outguess events, like court decisions," was significantly directed at what happened just before and after the recent TVA decision. It would be interesting to know just how much of that flurry in buying and selling of public utility stocks was for own account as against customer account, as bearing on proposed regulatory distinctions between broker and dealer.

What Mr. Landis had to say, incidentally, of the responsibilities and limitations laid upon the commission spoke volumes for his broad concept of the functions entrusted to that body. Outlining the methods adopted to prevent unfair practices in stock dealings and excessive speculation, he admitted that some things could not be barred out of existence by legislative fiat. To that he added:

"Our only mechanism is to induce change by inculcating the wish for change and by affording the means of knowledge to effectuate that change."

In other words, it is not possible for, and should not be attempted by, the government to safeguard the individual from the consequences of his own foolishness, heedlessness or avarice. He has got to use a modicum of common sense whether trading in securities or what not. If he doesn't, he is in for a trimming, more certainly, perhaps, on a stock exchange than elsewhere.

But even after the Italians have won Ethiopia, what will they have?

The backbone of winter, made of sturdy stuff this year, is showing signs of weakening.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

What's a threat to one person may be a promise to another.

Senator L. J. Dickinson unmistakably intended to threaten when he recently reminded the country that the re-election of a New Deal president is more than likely to mean the creation of a New Deal supreme court before the coming presidential term is ended.

But, to New Dealers, this is all the more reason for re-electing the present New Deal president.

However, whether interpreted as a warning or a pledge, the Iowa solon (himself something of a Republican, anti-New Deal presidential aspirant) undoubtedly spoke words of considerable sooth when he said what he did on the subject.

YOUNGEST IN 60's

If President Roosevelt is re-elected, before his second term ends Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds and Sutherland will be 79. Justice Butler will be 75. Justice Van Devanter will be 82. Justice Brandeis will be 85.

If they live, of course.

Is it among the probabilities that all, if any, of these old men will outlast another presidential term?

Justices Cardozo, at 66 now, Stone at 64 and Roberts at 61, are comparatively youthful, but they're only three out of nine, and maybe not even their trio will survive unbroken until the spring of 1941.

This isn't to make direful predictions, but only to recognize reasonable probabilities.

THE ALIGNMENT

Assume that Justice Brandeis doesn't die but, maybe, retires. He's the court's outstanding liberal. Presumably, by the appointment of a New Deal president, another, equally liberal, will succeed him.

Justices McReynolds, Sutherland, Butler and Van Devanter notoriously are Tories. All logic would suggest that their seats, if left vacant, would be reoccupied by liberals, if chosen by a New Deal president and confirmed by a New Deal senate.

Chief Justice Hughes is but a very mild mild progressive; his seat on the bench could be greatly liberalized by a New Deal appointment.

PARTLY LIBERAL

Justice Cardozo is almost if not quite as liberal as Justice Brandeis.

Justice Stone also is liberally assessed. Personally I think he is only qualifiedly so. Still, he's no hidebound reactionary. Roberts is slightly liberal.

DISMISSED ROPER AIDES TRIED TO CLEAN UP STEAMBOAT INSPECTION

WASHINGTON—Behind Secretary Roper's dismissal of two experts on steamship inspection last week is a long and secret story of intrigue which goes to the roots of the Morro Castle and other tragedies of the sea.

Commander H. McCoy Jones and Frederick L. Adams, both of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, had fought a hard-fisted, sometimes ruthless battle against the big shipping companies to prevent further tragedies. And they were supported by J. B. Weaver, head of the Bureau.

Both young, both ex-naval officers, both with independent means, they had joined Roper's Commerce Department for the sole purpose of preventing sea tragedies, did not care whether they retained their jobs or not. Politics was the last thing they worried about.

Shortly after they joined Mr. Roper's organization, however, they found that politics mattered a great deal. Also they began to uncover what every sea tragedy has pointed to, inexcusable inefficiency and graft in the steamboat inspection service.

LIFE BOAT INSPECTION

The navigation laws, for instance, require that every life-boat shall be inspected before a vessel departs. A proper inspection requires that it shall be swung out on its davits and lowered in the water to test leaks.

But almost never is a full inspection made. Bureau inspectors are content to swing out one boat and let the rest go. Other inspection is on the same level.

Probing into this, Jones and Adams suspected that gratuities were being given to some of their inspectors. It was difficult to prove this, but they found inspectors living beyond their income, also receiving various intangible benefits from steamship owners.

STEAMSHIP OWNERS' LOBBY

Even more important, they found that when honest inspectors did insist on a thorough fulfillment of their duties, the steamship owners—who maintain one of the most efficient lobbies in Washington—immediately went over their heads to the higher-ups in the Commerce Department.

The Young Bloods in the Navigation Bureau immediately started a reform. One of these reforms was to pay inspectors more money, eliminate graft temptation.

FLOATING FIRETRAPS

Another condition, pregnant with tragedy, that the Young Bloods unearthed was the state of American coastwise and inner waterway vessels.

Many of these, including the ships used on some of the most popular excursions to New England and the South, were characterized by McCoy and Adams as "floating firetraps" which would sink "if one hole was poked in them."

They also reported that "many of the ferries throughout the country are old vessels and of an inflammable construction."

With All My Heart

CHAPTER 26

THE DAYS next incident was marked by a hearty attack on the front door knocker, a half hour later. Thora, who was in the drawing room at the moment, stepped across the hall to answer it, sending a nod and smile to Jane who came hurrying from the dining room.

"The caller proved to be none other than Sherman Gordon."

"Well, we meet again," was his smiling greeting. "Please note, Miss Thora Dahl, that I'm making a proper entrance this time."

"Will you come in?" "I had something of the sort in mind," he admitted. "And now you can't keep me out. Is Wilma at home?"

"Yes, she is, Mr. Gordon. But I believe that she is lying down just now... a headache."

Thora supplied that sympathetic subterfuge almost without thinking. She realized that Wilma's face still bore the marks of protracted tears; she would not wish to see anyone. Thora also found herself speculating about Mr. Gordon. Did he know about Mr. Babbas? It was not likely.

Sherman stood looking down at her, his hands thrust in his pockets, the familiar smile quivering the corners of his mouth.

"Something tells me the battle has been fought," he drawled. "Do you happen to know what the casualties were? Or who won?"

"I'm afraid that I don't understand."

"No? Well, it's all in the family. Little Wilma succumbed to the charms of some gallant across the pond and has been afraid to break the news to old Selwyn."

Thora sobbed out the sad story on my shoulder the other afternoon. Had the nerve to suggest that I act as ambassador to this Ali Babba, or whatever his name is. I told her there was nothing doing... not with her dad in the throes of patriot ancestors. She was planning to break the news to him today, so I thought I'd stroll by and check up on the news."

Thora wondered involuntarily if Mr. Gordon were as indifferent to Wilma's engagement as he seemed. Perhaps he was assuming this pose to hide his real feelings.

"Mr. Babbas is expected here... as a guest," was her official comment.

"Yes? Well, in that case, I've got quite a job ahead of me, I fancy. For Wilma's sake, I don't mind taking this Ali Babba under my wing, but... The first shade of gravity touched Sherman Gordon's tones.

"But, if he turns out to be one of the Forty Thieves... God help him!"

Life seemed to have entered into a new phase, Thora Dahl thought, as she went about her duties the next day. The change had come about so suddenly. Merely a few hours ago, the future had loomed up like some blank wall. Now, she felt established once more. There was a little glow of satisfaction when she recalled what had happened.

Mr. Marsh really wanted her to stay at Fair Acres. She was glad now that she had told him her story. Perhaps she had been unduly sensitive... after all, she had nothing to be ashamed of. It was only her father's stubborn ideas of righteousness that had sent her adrift, preventing her from taking up the old life that belonged to her. But she felt that, now, she had emerged from under a cloud of some sort and could look the world squarely in the face. And Wilma Marsh no longer was unfriendly. The girl had come to her little sitting room the evening before of her own accord. There had been nothing effusive about Wilma, but she had been frank and unreserved. Mr. Babbas would arrive the next day but one, reaching Fair Acres in time for dinner. There were various arrangements to make. But Wilma showed no inclination to be dictatorial; it merely was a household conference.

While Thora was thinking these things over, as she went about her duties, a ringing of the telephone sent her into the front hall to answer the summons. She recognized the voice at once.

"Please ask Miss Marsh to come to the telephone," the crisp tones ordered.

"Just a moment, Mrs. Steele," Thora replied. "Miss Marsh is upstairs. I will call her to the extension."

A moment later, she heard Wilma's voice coming in on the line and she replaced the receiver.

A little later, Wilma came down the stairs with her hat on.

"If father asks for me," she volunteered, "will you please tell him that I have gone over to Aunt Dorothy's for a little while. I'm going to ask Ted to drive me."

Thora nodded, wondering to herself why Wilma elected to make the short trip by car. She herself would have preferred to walk across the fields on such a beautiful day. From the open door she watched Wilma enter the roadster, with a good-natured greeting to the boy.

"How have you been making out, Ted?" Wilma inquired, as the machine started down the driveway.

"Oh, I'm fine." "You look it." The girl's dark eyes lighted with amusement. "How do you like our good-looking house-keeper?"

"She's a peach!" Ted realized that he had allowed his enthusiasm to get the better of him. He blushed under her freckles.

"Well!" Wilma exclaimed banteringly. "So that's it. I heard that you were smitten there. Nellie told me. The poor girl is crushed. You shouldn't be so cruel, Ted, really."

"Aw... she's crazy," young Mr. Gardner muttered, the flush in his cheeks deepening. "You don't want to pay any attention to her, Miss Wilma."

"I don't know..." his mistress said doubtfully. "You have a way with women. Well, I'm not sure I blame you." To Ted's great relief, she changed the subject. "I shan't be in Mrs. Steele's very long. I want you to wait."

"Yes, ma'am. I'll wait."

As the car slowed to a stop before the door of the small white house, its owner came hurrying down the steps.

"Wilma, darling! It was good of you to come over so quickly." She held up her cheek for her visitor to kiss.

Wilma walked directly out to a small sun parlor at the end of the hall and dropped into one of the chintz-covered chairs. She swept her hat from her head with a careless motion, took a cigarette from her bag and lighted it.

"Well!" she inquired. "What is all the excitement about?"

"Why, I wanted to have a little talk with you, darling... alone." Mrs. Steele began, drawing a small chair close to her caller's.

"Okay," Wilma blew a thread of smoke into the air and watched it through her half-closed eyes. "I have something to tell you, too. But you start in."

Stuttering Involuntary Break in Speech

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"STUTTERING, with which we include stammering, may be described as an involuntary break in the rhythm of speech."

Such is the definition given in a new book by Dr. Logan Clendening, B. S. M. I. B. and Margaret Gray Blanton, called "For Stutterers."

The subject is of universal interest and for good reason. Out of 1,142 freshmen at the University of Wisconsin, in 1919, 79 stuttered. That is quite a good proportion of the population. They are found in all fields and walks of life, so that it is very difficult to speak of them as a whole. One thing, however, distinguishes them—they do not think of themselves as such as members of a race, nation, religion or profession, but as stutterers. Only the totally deaf and the totally blind recognize this same group membership.

Interruptions in the rhythm of speech occur in different periods of life. It often is thought that stuttering is nearly always outgrown. Stutterers are frequently reassured by someone who bases his comfortable thought on the statement, "I, myself, stuttered once." At the age of 6 a good many more people group at the age of 10. The person whose stuttering gets worse at 10, usually continues with it through adolescence, at which time it either disappears or becomes worse and persists through adult life.

What Causes Stuttering? The explanation of the cause of stuttering falls into two general divisions. One is that it is more or less physical. The theory ranges from the very simple idea that it can be overcome by training, to the rather complicated theory developed by Travis that it is due to a disturbance of the nervous pattern of left-handedness and right-handedness. In other words, that stutterers are mostly left-handed people who have learned to become right-handed.

The other theory that the Blantons emphasize, is that it is largely emotional. In the development of the nerve centers, the lower nerve centers gradually surrender their independent activity and bring themselves under the control of the higher nerve centers of the brain. In the stutterer some emotional strain or continued anxiety interferes with this orderly development. The cruder movements which cause such noises as grunting and sucking, break through the movements of speech which are controlled by the higher centers, and result in the interrupted rhythm of speech.

VERY BOLD BIDDING

TODAY'S HAND was the occasion of very bold bidding, combined with shrewd strategy and such an air of jaunty assurance by declarer that it seemed most disconcerting to the defenders.

Bidding went: South, 1-Spade; North, 1-No Trump, to show lack of quick trick strength; South, 2-Hearts; North, 3-Diamonds, to show his long suit; South, 3-Hearts; North, 4-Spades, which seemed an amazing call.

The opening lead was the 4 of clubs, sweeping away the J and K of the suit, and the trick going to declarer's Ace. The two evident methods of play were for dummy to ruff two losing hearts, or for declarer to establish dummy's diamonds, to enable two hearts to be discarded thereon later on, provided all went well. To be ready for either plan, declarer led a diamond, when West's Ace won, he as good as told everyone that he also held the missing Q.

To hamper declarer's ability to ruff off losing hearts, the return led was the 10 of spades. Dummy's J and East's Q were picked up with declarer's K. With scarcely an instant's thought South led back his Ace of spades, followed by a low trump, and West's 9 of spades gave defenders their second defensive trick.

West led his 10 of clubs, hoping to annoy declarer by leaving him in the dummy, but South led a low heart from dummy, won with his K, then led a diamond through West, picking up the lone Q, and leaving all of dummy's diamonds good. Declarer followed suit on the first diamond led from dummy. He discarded his two low hearts on the two last diamonds led from dummy. That brought play through the eleventh trick. The two remaining tricks went to declarer's Ace of hearts and his long trump, giving him 6-odd, on holdings looking only fair.

PATTERN 5495

You can have this done in time for Easter—yes, truly! if you begin at once, and what better time to introduce a brand new chair set to living-room, bedroom or den? Easy, six-to-the-inch crosses make this stitchery fun, while a variety of colors for roses, ribbons and basket will whip liveliness into the design. Perchance it's a large pillow for the sofa—a pair of small boudoir pillows you need? These motifs would be lovely for either.

In pattern 5495 you will find a transfer pattern 7x7½ inches; material requirements; color chart and key; illustrations of all stitches used. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Herald Household Art Dept., 210 N. Court-st., Circleville, O. A FARMER BOY

ONE of the best known medical men in the United States was Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, New York, who was born on a farm in Pa. He noted daily in his medical career that many of his prescriptions prepared from roots, herbs, and barks, such as "Golden Medical Discovery," produced astonishing results. He early founded a Clinic and Hospital in Buffalo, N. Y., and later in New York City. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is an herbal extract which eliminates poisons from the blood and tones up the digestive system. Pimples and blotches caused by faulty elimination disappear and you feel the tonic and strengthening effect of this well tried medicine. Ask your Druggist now! BOY WHO SLEW FATHER PAROLED

Sesco Carper to Leave Prison
April 1; to Go South

Sesco Carper, Whistler, Salt-creek-twp youth, has been paroled from Mansfield reformatory, effective on or after April 1, to go to West Virginia, his native home.

Carper was convicted of manslaughter February 2, 1932 by a petit jury in Fairfield-co in the death of his father in August, 1931. The youth was originally indicted for first degree murder, after his arrest October 12, 1931.

Judge F. M. Acton sentenced Carper one to twenty years on conviction. The youth had served 162 days in the county jail. Russell Cunningham was prosecutor at the time of the trial. He was assisted by John Silbaugh, present prosecutor. Defense counsel was Tom Renick and George Vorys, of Lancaster.

County officers found the badly decomposed body of Carper's father in a wooded ravine near Buena Vista, just inside the county line in August of 1931.

Young Carper contended after his arrest that he shot his father in self-defense following an argument over a rifle while hunting in that vicinity.

The youth applied for parole three times since he entered the reformatory, but the state board refused to grant releases.

ASHVILLE BOYS, PICKAWAY GIRLS WIN CAGE HONORS

N. HOLLAND AND WALNUT BEATEN IN FAST GAMES

Great Rally By Bulldogs Cuts 40-18 Lead to Final Score of 42-37

Ashville boys and Pickaway girls are basketball champions of Pickaway-co., and New Holland and Walnut are the runners-up as a result of one of the most sensational and successful tournaments in recent years.

The Ashville boys were favorites as a result of their fine basketball during the season, but the Pickaway girls were darkhorses. The boys' game was decided in a thrilling 42-37 game and the girls by a 28-18 margin.

It is almost impossible to put into words the Ashville-New Holland title contest. It started as a free-scoring event with Ashville sweeping into 13-8 lead at the end of the first period.

40-18 Lead Obtained

There was no stopping Young, Gregg, Millar and Walden in the second quarter and Ashville took a 29-13 lead. This was lengthened into a 40-18 edge at the fourth quarter started, and then everything happened.

The real blow to the Ashville team was the loss of Jerry Millar, best defensive man on the team, through fouls. Then New Holland went into action. Everett Landman, held to three foul shots the night before by Warner of Pickaway, could not be stopped. He pegged the ball from the side, from in front of the hoop, and from under it. All in all he scored 26 points in the game, eight more than he had tallied in the other three games of the tournament. His showing was a great climax to a splendid career in high school basketball.

Drama Enacted

The New Holland rally had every fan in the C. A. C. gymnasium on his toes. Coach Al Kaubert of Ashville broke out in a perspiration; Coach Shadel Saunders called encouragement to his boys, telling them they had plenty of time. But the New Holland rally started too late and the early lead of Ashville was too great. Chuck Young was Ashville's individual star, caging 10 buckets for 20 points.

Pickaway-twp girls led by Graves and G. Rhodes took an early lead over the Walnut team and held it the whole way through. The first quarter ended 10-4, the third 23-15, and the game 28-18. It was just a case of Pickaway's offense being better than Walnut's defense.

Pickaway Boys Third

In the boys' consolation game, Pickaway had an easy time winning third place from Muhlenberg in a 40-10 game. Old Diz Dean, Muhlenberg's mainstay was not in uniform.

Ashville, New Holland and Pickaway will represent the county in the district tournament.

Four trophies were awarded at the conclusion of the championship games. Referee Kroger Babb presented M. C. Warren, tournament manager, who in turn introduced Supt. George D. McDowell. The latter presented championship trophies to Ashville and Pickaway and basketballs to New Holland and Walnut, the runners-up. Glen Geib, editor of The Herald, was called on to present league championship trophies to Ashville boys and Darby girls, these teams finishing on top their respective leagues during the regular season.

The championship trophies presented by Mr. McDowell are permanent, while those of The Herald are to be retained one year. If any team should win The Herald trophies three consecutive years they, too, become permanent.

BUCKEYES AND INDIANA MEET IN LEAGUE WINDUP

COLUMBUS, March 2—Ohio State basketball team was to complete its Big Ten season tonight at Bloomington against Indiana University. The contest is the first of two the Bucks will play on the trip. Tuesday they will oppose Notre Dame at South Bend.

In their first meeting Ohio scored one of the major upsets of the season when it defeated Indiana 34-31. It is the lone conference defeat suffered by the Hoosiers.

On the basis of Ohio's showing Saturday night against Illinois, the Bucks will be the underdog in both their road games.

About THIS and THAT In Many Sports

Hrobon Leaves Country Club

Emil Hrobon, young Cleveland who did more to arouse interest in the Pickaway Country club last summer than any other one factor, will not be present when the season opens scarcely a month hence—Hrobon will be at Indian Springs club, Columbus—The local club paid him $5 a week and all he could make in lessons and merchandise. The proposition at Columbus is $15 a week and all he could make in lessons and merchandise. The proposition at Columbus is $15 a week and all he could make in lessons and merchandise. The proposition at Columbus is $15 a week and all he could make in lessons and merchandise.

County Well-Represented

Pickaway-co. will be represented in the district tournament by the three strongest teams to draw places in a number of years—Ashville, New Holland and Pickaway are all capable of knocking off some pretty good foes. The last Ashville championship was in 1928—That win this year is the first since Al Kauber started to coach in the Harrison-twp village.

Burger, Millar Forecasters

Carl Burger, young Pickaway coach, said a month ago that if his girls could get into the tournament they'd win it—Timmy Millar, Ashville sportsman and father of Jerry, Ashville defensive star, said before the girls' title game that Pickaway would win by 10 points—The margin was 28-18.

Timer, Scorer Competent

New Holland was the only school in the county that asked to have a timer check with Carol Van Zandt, official tournament timer—Wayne Wilson, young Pickaway grad, did a perfect job of official scoring—He usually had his book tallied before any one else at the scorers' table.

Failed During Season

Pickaway girls lost four ball games during the season, falling before Walnut by 12 points, before Ashville by 17 counters, and to Darby and Perry by smaller edges—On the other hand, Darby girls, defeated in their first tournament game, lost only one contest in the regular season.

Financially a Success

The tournament, financially, was a great success—Even Saturday night when the ante went to 50 cents did not keep any fans away—But the success of the tourney was due to its management by M. C. Warren and Carl Bennett.

Jenkins was placed at a guard. Other members of the Journal's team are:

Forwards, Weideman of Marysville and Forrest of Grandview; center, Whetzel of Delaware; and guard, Ehrliebach of Bexley. Every team except Westerville received a first team place while Bill Henry, Westerville's best cager, was honorably mentioned as a guard. MADISON, Wis., March 2—(UP)—The University of Wisconsin board of regents waited for President Glenn Frank's nomination to a new faculty athletic board today, to prove they are qualified to remain in the Big Ten conference.

The Big Ten's ultimatum demanding proof that the faculty still runs Wisconsin's athletics failed to alarm Harold M. Wilke, regents' president.

"There really is no cause for alarm," he said. "There's nothing to do but wait until Dr. Frank appoints a new athletic board."

SIX TEAMS ARE SEEDS FOR DISTRICT TOURNEY

AKRON, March 2—(UP)—Six teams had been seeded here today as scholastic quintets made hurried preparations to open play in the Class "A" Northwestern District basketball at Kent State University tonight.

At a meeting of coaches of district teams here yesterday it was decided to shift the tournament to Kent because of the labor difficulties which resulted in the shutdown of the Goodyear gymnasium here.

Ralph N. Shafer, tournament manager, announced, however, play would be taken back to Goodyear immediately if the strike was settled.

Teams which were seeded on the basis of their seasonal records were Barberton, Akron South, Canton McKinley, Massillon, Akron Buchtel and Akron Garfield.

Barberton has the finest record among the 26 teams entered in the district play. The team won 15 contests and lost one. Akron Buchtel won 13 and lost one for the next best mark.

CINCINNATI AND WESLEYAN TOTIE

Bearcats Beaten By Miami; Bishops Play Tonight

COLUMBUS, March 2—(UP)—Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Cincinnati, today appeared destined to divide another league championship.

Wesleyan meets the University of Dayton, winner of but one conference game this season, tonight at Delaware and a victory for the Bishops will enable them to share the title with Cincinnati.

Coach Ray Detrick's quintet was given its chance to share in the championship spoils when Miami turned back Cincinnati 28 to 23 at Oxford Saturday night.

The victory for Miami avenged a two point defeat it had suffered earlier in the campaign at Cincinnati. It was the first triumph for Miami over the Bearcats at Oxford since the formation of the Buckeye.

Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan have each won two Buckeye conference titles and split two others between them.

The Bearcats won championships in 1926 and 1928, while Wesleyan took the crowns in 1934 and 1935. In 1929 and 1930 the two were co-champions.

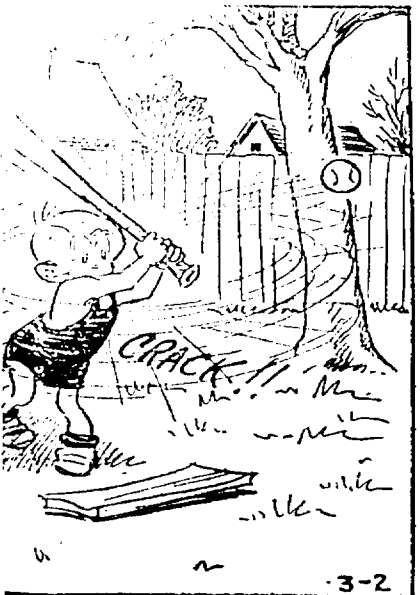

Marietta clinched its Ohio conference championship 10 days ago, but over the week-end hopped out of the state to meet Washington and Jefferson and was handed a 53 to 27 defeat.

There used to be an unwritten rule of letter etiquette to the effect that it was contrary to good taste to use the personal pronoun I, as the first word of a letter. This rule, however, has not been observed for many years.

BUCKEYES AND INDIANA MEET IN LEAGUE WINDUP

COLUMBUS, March 2—Ohio State basketball team was to complete its Big Ten season tonight at Bloomington against Indiana University. The contest is the first of two the Bucks will play on the trip. Tuesday they will oppose Notre Dame at South Bend.

In their first meeting Ohio scored one of the major upsets of the season when it defeated Indiana 34-31. It is the lone conference defeat suffered by the Hoosiers.

On the basis of Ohio's showing Saturday night against Illinois, the Bucks will be the underdog in both their road games.

TRAUTMAN PICKS UMPIRE

COLUMBUS, March 2—(UP)—E. J. Borski, Moline, Ill., former Western association umpire, today

About THIS and THAT In Many Sports

Hroban Leaves Country Club

Emil Hroban, young Cleveland who did more to arouse interest in the Pickaway Country club last summer than any other one factor, will not be present when the season opens scarcely a month hence—Hroban will be at Indian Springs club, Columbus—The local club paid him $5 a week and all he could make in lessons and merchandise—The proposition at Columbus is $15 a week and the same possibilities ***

County Well-Represented

Pickaway-co will be represented in the district tournament by the three strongest teams to draw places in a number of years—Ashville, New Holland and Pickaway are all capable of knocking off some pretty good foes—The last Ashville championship was in 1928—That win this year is the first since Al Kauber started to coach in the Harrison-top village

Burger, Millar Forecasters

Carl Burger, young Pickaway coach, said a month ago that if his girls could get into the tournament they'd win it—Timmy Millar, Ashville sportsman and father of Jerry, Ashville defensive star, said before the girls' title game that Pickaway would win by 10 points—The margin was 28-18

Timer, Scorer Competent

New Holland was the only school in the county that asked to have a timer check with Carol Van Zandt, official tournament timer—Wayne Wilson, young Pickaway grad, did a perfect job of official scoring—He usually had his book tallied before any one else at the scorers' table ***

Failed During Season

Pickaway girls lost four ball games during the season, falling before Walnut by 12 points, before Ashville by 17 counters, and to Darby and Perry by smaller edges—On the other hand, Darby girls, defeated in their first tournament game, lost only one contest in the regular season ***

Financially a Success

The tournament, financially, was a great success—Even Saturday night when the ante went to 50 cents did not keep any fans away—But the success of the tourney was due to its management by M. C. Warren and Carl Bennett ***

President Frank to Appoint New Athletic Board

MADISON, Wis., March 2—(UP)—The University of Wisconsin board of regents waited for President Glenn Frank's nominations to a new faculty athletic board today, to prove they are qualified to remain in the Big Ten conference.

The Big Ten's ultimatum demanding proof that the faculty still runs Wisconsin's athletics failed to alarm Harold M. Wilke, regents' president.

"There really is no cause for alarm," he said. "There's nothing to do but wait until Dr. Frank appoints a new athletic board."

SIX TEAMS ARE SEEDS FOR DISTRICT TOURNEY

AKRON, March 2—(UP)—Six teams had been seeded here today as scholastic quintets made hurried preparations to open play in the Class "A" Northwestern District basketball at Kent State University tonight.

At a meeting of coaches of district teams here yesterday it was decided to shift the tournament to Kent because of the labor difficulties which resulted in the shutdown of the Goodyear gymnasium here.

Ralph N. Shafer, tournament manager, announced, however, play would be taken back to Goodyear immediately if the strike was settled.

Teams which were seeded on the basis of their seasonal records were Barberton, Akron South, Canton McKinley, Massillon, Akron Buchtel and Akron Garfield.

Barberton has the finest record among the 26 teams entered in the district play. The team won 15 contests and lost one. Akron Buchtel won 13 and lost one for the next best mark.

CINCINNATI AND WESLEYAN TOTIE

Bearcats Beaten By Miami; Bishops Play Tonight

COLUMBUS, March 2—(UP)—Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Cincinnati, today appeared destined to divide another league championship.

Wesleyan meets the University of Dayton, winner of but one conference game this season, tonight at Delaware and a victory for the Bishops will enable them to share the title with Cincinnati.

Coach Ray Detrick's quintet was given its chance to share in the championship spoils when Miami turned back Cincinnati 28 to 23 at Oxford Saturday night.

The victory for Miami avenged a two point defeat it had suffered earlier in the campaign at Cincinnati. It was the first triumph for Miami over the Bearcats at Oxford since the formation of the Buckeye.

Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan have each won two Buckeye conference titles and split two others between them.

The Bearcats won championships in 1926 and 1928, while Wesleyan took the crowns in 1934 and 1935. In 1929 and 1930 the two were co-champions.

Marietta clinched its Ohio conference championship 10 days ago, but over the week-end hopped out of the state to meet Washington and Jefferson and was handed a 53 to 27 defeat.

There used to be an unwritten rule of letter etiquette to the effect that it was contrary to good taste to use the personal pronoun I, as the first word of a letter. This rule, however, has not been observed for many years.

MINISTER PRAISED AS M. E. CHURCH IS FREE OF DEBT

TRUSTEES TAKE PART IN SUNDAY MORNING RITES

Sum of $3,486.51 Paid By Congregation; Balance in Treasury Feb. 29

Financial reports, revealing the First M. E. church is free of debt, and highly praising the work of Rev. Herman A. Sayre, pastor, were presented to the church congregation and Dr. R. O. McClure, Columbus, superintendent of the Chillicothe district, at the Sunday services by the church trustees.

Veteran members of the church, whose memberships date back 50 years, report it is the first time in their recollection the institution has been free of debt. One report, given by Alfred Lee, church trustee, stated the church has a balance of $13.65 on Feb. 29, and all outstanding expenses had been paid to date.

Progress is Shown

Another report, given by Meeker Terwilliger, also a trustee, showed the progress made by the church since the Rev. Sayre has served as pastor.

The report in part follows: "On this occasion it is deemed proper and good business to give to you a report of the present financial condition of this church, also to give you a summary of what has been done in church finances during the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Sayre.

"When Rev. Sayre came to this church about Oct. 1, 1933, the church then had an outstanding indebtedness of $3,486.51. This sum consisted of $2,900 in notes and accrued interest outstanding, for money borrowed, together with other accumulated indebtedness of $586.51.

"Soon after Rev. Sayre became familiar with the then outstanding existing indebtedness, with the consent of the official board, he undertook the task of raising money with which to pay all of this debt. Through his continued activity and hard work on his part, and with the generous response of the members, constituents and friends of the church, the full amount was raised and the debt discharged.

Repairs Made, Too

"Since then it has been necessary to make repairs to the heating plant, install a new heating plant for the parsonage, and purchase other equipment and make improvements, all of which amounted to $2,938.91, which was not included in the regular budget of the church but has been raised and paid in full.

"We, therefore, have a grand total of $6,183.42, which includes all old indebtedness and special expenditures made and paid for, all since Oct. 1, 1933. Furthermore, new hymnals for services, and song books for the Sunday school, have been purchased from contributions made by the congregation of this church, and the current expenses of the church to Feb. 28, are paid in full, with a small balance. In short, we are out of debt.

"During the two and a half years of the present pastorate, the Rev. Mr. Sayre, has received 138 new members into this church, many of which are young married folk, and all of the new members are worthy additions to our church and congregation."

Further details of the report showed the Ladies' Aid society had an outstanding debt, but $500, recently bequeathed by Mrs. Lerora Hall, will enable the society to settle the debt and have a good balance in the treasury. A legacy of $500 from the estate of John R. Van Meter, also aided in freeing the church of debt.

Members of the Board of Trustees besides Mr. Terwilliger and Mr. Lee are: F. E. Barnhill, chairman, Leslie Pontius, Harley B. Colwell, N. A. Warner, O. S. Howard, Dr. G. D. Phillips, and Melvin Rinehart.

Dr. McClure was guest pastor at the church Sunday. He highly praised the financial reports presented at the services.

POLICE CHIEF McCRAID RESTING COMFORTABLY

The condition of Police Chief William McCraide, who was accidentally shot in the left leg below the knee Thursday evening when his revolver fell from the holster, was reported steadily improving Monday morning. He will be confined to his bed several days.

In the account of Mr. McCraide's accident, recently published, the name of Patrolman Alva Shastien, acting chief, was inadvertently omitted. Mr. Shastien took Mr. McCraide to the office of Dr. E. S. Shastien for treatment.

the strike is fully effective.

Sometime today Bambrick said he intended to extend his "creeping paralysis" to the downtown business and financial districts. Such structures as the Empire State building, the building at 75 Varick street, described as the "largest loft building in the world," and the towering skyscrapers in the Wall Street area would suffer, the union leader predicted.

Meantime, Mayor F. H. La Guardia went into conference at city hall with Health Commissioner John L. Rice, presumably to determine whether to invoke his power to order police and other municipal employees to operate elevators on the ground the strike "jeopardizes the lives and health of citizens."

Stern said the agreement was for three years, "along the lines of the union requests."

The chief matter to be considered will be whether the house should be recalled into session to consider the senate's amendments to the adjournment resolution.

DETROIT, March 2.—(UP)—All radio stations broadcasting the Sunday sermons of Father Charles E. Coughlin today were warned by Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, that he will hold them strictly responsible for "further libelous statements."

However, no libel suits have been filed so far, according to Leo Fitzpatrick, president of WJR, originating station of the Coughlin broadcasts.

"We received a telegram from O'Connor warning the station and everyone connected with the Coughlin broadcast that they will be held accountable if there are further libelous statements," he said. "I understand the telegrams were dispatched to all 32 stations on the Coughlin hookup."

Coughlin's office in Royal Oak was unaware of the warning and said it was unknown whether the radio priest also had received one.

Agricultural Adjustment administration, who have been marking time since Jan. 6, sprang into action under urgent orders of Administrator Chester C. Davis, for speed in placing the new program into effect.

Davis planned, as the first move, a series of four conferences with agricultural leaders in Memphis, Chicago, New York and Salt Lake City within the next 10 days to formulate plans to take 30,000,000 acres out of commercial production this year and place them in legumes and other soil conserving crops.

President Roosevelt in announcing his signing of the bill passed last week by congress, said it "helps to safeguard vital public interests, not only for today, but for generations to come."

The president, in a formal statement stressed three "major objectives" of the program which he said are "inseparably and of necessity linked with the national welfare." They were:

Three Facts Cited

1. "The conservation of the soil itself through wise and proper land use.

2. "The re-establishment and maintenance of farm income at fair levels so that the great gains made by agriculture in the past three years can be preserved and national recovery continue.

3. "The protection of consumers by assuring adequate supplies of food and fiber now and in the future."

COUZENS DENIES HE WILL CAMPAIGN WITH BORAH

DETROIT, March 2.—(UP)—Mayor Frank Couzens today branded as "ridiculous" rumors that he intended being a vice-presidential candidate with Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

William B. Kuder, secretary to Couzens, said that such rumors reported in Washington were absolutely "false" and "ungrounded."

"Mayor Couzens," Kuder said, "has no such intentions. He said that such reports were decidedly 'ridiculous'."

"That man wants me to lend him some money. Do you know anything about him?"

"I know him as well as I know you. Don't lend him a cent, old man."

Money Career Ends

CLIMB to the heights as an international financier ended for Frank J. Raven, an American who headed a $50,000,000 business in Shanghai, China, when he was convicted on embezzlement charges growing out of the collapse of the "Raven group" of companies of which he was president. The financial failure was so extensive that it virtually impoverished many thousands of people in China. Raven, a native of Alamo, Cal., went to China in 1904.

the strike is fully effective.

Sometime today Bambrick said he intended to extend his "creeping paralysis" to the downtown business and financial districts. Such structures as the Empire State building, the building at 75 Varick street, described as the "largest loft building in the world," and the towering skyscrapers in the Wall Street area would suffer, the union leader predicted.

Meantime, Mayor F. H. La Guardia went into conference at city hall with Health Commissioner John L. Rice, presumably to determine whether to invoke his power to order police and other municipal employees to operate elevators on the ground the strike "jeopardizes the lives and health of citizens."

19,000 Officers Called

The entire police force of 19,000 men was ordered to "stand by" by Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine.

The strikers scored their first victory when Milton Stern, executive director of the Metropolitan Association of Building Owners, signed an agreement with the union which sent more than 1,000 workers in more than 100 apartment buildings back to their jobs. Stern said the agreement was for three years, "along the lines of the union requests."

ACTION IS TAKEN TO RESUME WORK IN OHIO ASSEMBLY

COLUMBUS, March 2.—(UP)—Leaders of the Ohio House of Representatives will confer here Tuesday in an effort to work out some plan breaking the legislative deadlock resulting from the jam between the senate and house over the question of adjournment.

J. Freer Bittinger, speaker of the house, said today he is asking Rep. William M. McCulloch, Miami, Republican floor leader, and Rep. Frank R. Uible, Cuyahoga, Democratic floor leader, to meet with him to discuss the situation.

The chief matter to be considered will be whether the house should be recalled into session to consider the senate's amendments to the adjournment resolution.

New York Solon Angered By Coughlin Attacks

DETROIT, March 2.—(UP)—All radio stations broadcasting the Sunday sermons of Father Charles E. Coughlin today were warned by Representative John J. O'Connor, of New York, that he will hold them strictly responsible for "further libelous statements."

However, no libel suits have been filed so far, according to Leo Fitzpatrick, president of WJR, originating station of the Coughlin broadcasts.

"We received a telegram from O'Connor warning the station and everyone connected with the Coughlin broadcast that they will be held accountable if there are further libelous statements," he said. "I understand the telegrams were dispatched to all 32 stations on the Coughlin hookup."

Coughlin's office in Royal Oak was unaware of the warning and said it was unknown whether the radio priest also had received one.

5,000 BEGIN JOB OF PUTTING FARM PLANS IN ACTION

Agricultural Adjustment administration, who have been marking time since Jan. 6, sprang into action under urgent orders of Administrator Chester C. Davis, for speed in placing the new program into effect.

Davis planned, as the first move, a series of four conferences with agricultural leaders in Memphis, Chicago, New York and Salt Lake City within the next 10 days to formulate plans to take 30,000,000 acres out of commercial production this year and place them in legumes and other soil conserving crops.

President Roosevelt in announcing his signing of the bill passed last week by congress, said it "helps to safeguard vital public interests, not only for today, but for generations to come."

The president, in a formal statement stressed three "major objectives" of the program which he said are "inseparably and of necessity linked with the national welfare." They were:

Three Facts Cited

1. "The conservation of the soil itself through wise and proper land use.

2. "The re-establishment and maintenance of farm income at fair levels so that the great gains made by agriculture in the past three years can be preserved and national recovery continue.

3. "The protection of consumers by assuring adequate supplies of food and fiber now and in the future."

The expression "born with a silver spoon in the mouth" derives from the medieval custom of presenting a godchild with silver or gold spoons.
